President To Ask Space, Defense Spending Boosts

Congress Will Get Requests On Thursday

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Kennedy will ask Congress Thursday for a substantial increase in government spending to step up America's space and destep up America's space and defense programs and increase aid to Communist - threatened South-

The Presidents' plans were disclosed by Democratic congressional leaders Tuesday after their weekly legislative conference with Kennedy. The White House indicated the request would be submitted in a message to the House and Senate, rather than in a personal appearance.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, Tex., said the President's appropriations requests would cover space, the armed forces, civil defense, foreign aid and job retaining.

"This is going to involve a lot of money," he added.

May Propose Aid Other leaders said Kennedy would propose increased aid to certain areas of Southeast Asia, including South Viet Nam and Thailand. He also will ask for a $285 million supplemental appropriation for the current fiscal year to strengthen some Army and Marine divisions.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he believed the President also would send to Congress this week a $2.8 billion foreign aid program for the fiscal year starting July 1. BALTIMORE (AP) — A 17-month-old baby died at a hospital Tuesday about five hours after a fall from a second floor porch.

Police said the victim, William Crowe, apparently climbed a guard rail while playing and fell 20 feet to pavement below. The baby was the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Crowe.

BALTIMORE (AP)—More than 400 members of the Maryland State Bar Association and their families sailed Tuesday for a fiveday cruise to Bermuda aboard the 15,000-ton liner Victoria.

The association's 1961 convention will be held at sea as the vessel travels to Bermuda and back. The ship, with 302 officers and crew, is scheduled to return to Baltimore Sunday.

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — Walter Kurth, 55, operator of Cedar Grove Beach in Dorchester County, died of a heart attack Monday night at his home here.

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Fire Department has come up with a noise-maker it thinks will help cut down the rate of false alarms turned in at street corner signal boxes.

The department installed a device which gives forth with a loud squawking noise when the alarm is pulled. It was attached to the most troublesome box in the city, where 13 false alarms already have been sounded so far this year.

City-wide, one of every three box alarms are false, fire officials say. Additional squawk - sounders have been ordered, in hopes the raucous noise will attract nearby residents and allow them to identify the alarm puller.

BALTIMORE (AP) — An increase of more than 200 per cent in state aid to public schools during the fiscal years between 1953 and 1962 was noted Tuesday in a chart prepared by Maryland's Bureau of Fiscal Research.

John S. Shriver, chief of the agency, said tax funds put into educational program advanced from $29.096,000 in 1953 to $95,832,000 for fiscal 1962, beginning July

The school programs constitute the largest single item of state general fund spending.

JFK Accepts Patron Post

BALTIMORE (AP) — President Kennedy has accepted the position of high patron for the 20th International Navigation Congress, organizing officials announced Tuesday.

Kennedy also has been invited to preside at the Sept. 11 opening session, on the Johns Hopkins University campus, but the White House has said it was too early to determine if the President could attend.

About 1,000 delegates from 50 nations are expected to attend the nine-day meeting. Business sessions will be devoted to discussions of inland and ocean navigation problems.

In accepting the post as high patron, Kennedy is following the tradition of having the head of the host country act in the ceremonial

The only other time the congress met in the United States. President William Howard Taft served as high patron and addressed the opening session in Philadelphia in 1912. The meetings are held every four years.

Indo Troops Return

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—A thousand Indonesian troops returned Tuesday aboard a U.S. transport from six months' U.N. service in the Congo. Indonesia withdrew its forces from the Congo in protest against U.N. policies.

New! A way to get more roses, bigger blooms

The simple (and surprising) secret of more roses is—more leaves! To keep insects and disease from taking their heavy toll, Scotts has developed a remarkable single control for all common rose enemies. It is called HAZE.

To achieve complete HAZE protection on the tops and undersides of every leaf, Scotts has developed a revolutionary new applicator, called the ZEPHYR. It wasts an enveloping dry mist of HAZE upward, depositing an invisible film on the leaves.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon" New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge. Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style saits and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

Summit Always A Precarious Spot

President Kennedy, it seems, is rapidly making an about-face in his attitude toward personal diplomacy. This is not puzzling, for the world situation has deteriorated rapidly since he took office.

The invasion of Cuba Washington supported has failed; the question in Laos is how much can be salvaged from the wreckage. The Communists are on the march elsewhere, with the odds favoring South Vietnam or Berlin as the next crisis point.

It is not surprising that the Communists should decide to move fast, to take the initiative on a wide variety of fronts in an effort to make gains before the new administration can solidify its policies.

Face-to-face meetings with Russian heads of state have been tried before. Other Presidents have gone to the summit. Before each trip, great expectations were built up, and in each case the hopes were dashed.

President Eisenhower's trip to the summit ended in ignominy when the Russians blew the mountain out from underneath the conferees. But the main purpose of President Kennedy is reported to be to impress on Khrushchev the determination of this country, and of the West, to defend its interests wherever they are threatened by Communist power. Any search for areas of agreement would come second.

If the President goes to a summit with no illusions, if he makes it clear in advance that what he intends might be described as an encounter rather than a meeting, if he is careful to forestall misconceptions, good may come out of the journey to the summit.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky American Capitalism

Looking through a General Motors report, I find that in 1960, this company had 595,151 employes and 830,873 shareholders. The capitalist system, as it has developed in the United States, is undoubtedly best described by these figures. The widespread ownership of American industry is characterized by widespread and diffuse public participation in ownership. Similarly, the size of the personnel, over half a million in this one company, represents an annual payrolf of $3,487,000,000 out of a total sales of $12,735,000,000. The dividends on common and preferred stock amounted to $577,000,000 and $381,000,000 of the net income was retained for use

In a word, American capitalism, as experienced by General Motors, our largest producing firm, shows a widespread distribution of ownership, actually larger than the number of employes; it shows that the workers get about 25 per cent of the total gross income; that wages are about six times as large as dividends. Ownership therefore is not of an exploitive but rather of a co-operative character.

As one looks at the structural organization of this business, ownership is distant from management which is inevitable in an organization which has roughly 800,000 shareholders. That means that ownership tends to be functionally a banking process. The owners do not participate in any phase of the industry's activities except that once a year, at an annual meeting, a stockholder rises to ask a question and is answered. While in practice the stockholders are called owners, actually their relationship to the business has become more in the nature of banking; the stockholder providing capital to management for the conduct of the business and having an increasingly smaller voice in either policy or practice.

As a matter of experience, ownership generally is not concerned much with the details of the operations of a business provided that a profit is earned or the enterprise shows the prospect of growth. If the owner finds it profitable or convenient he moves out of one enterprise into another. The business is in the hands of management which nowadays comes out of the work force of the organization.

In many respects, American capitalism functions differently from European capitalism, the American enterprise providing a smaller return on an investment, leaving large amounts of earnings within the business for expansion, development, acquisition and research. All the presidents of General Motors, since its organization in 1908, have come out of the work force, except Pierre S. Du Pont who represented new ownership. He came in when the company was in danger of bankruptcy and the Du Ponts made a heavy investment to save the company. He served for three years and was succeeded by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., who came out of the sales force of the Hyatt Roller Bearings Company, a subsidiary.

This has been characteristic of American industry. Very few sons have succeeded to the positions of their progenitors. In the automobile business, the Fords are exceptional; in the steel business such succession is equally rare. In most enterprises, it does not happen at all. In family enterprises, it is expected that members of the founding family will succeed each other but that is not so in large corporate enterprises. The rise of men to authority out of the ranks, gives to corporate organization incentives which were unexpected in the early development of this type of enterprise.

It is the very bigness of modern business which provides opportunity for men to rise, because what is bought and paid for is experience, not a family tree or a propitious marriage. Experience, knowledge, competence is sought wherever it may exist and is given wide range when it is found.

In fact, in recent years, it has become so difficult to find satisfactory managerial ability that a system of stock options — meaning, participation in ownership under specific conditions-has been developed to attract skillful management to an enterprise. Management seeks fringe benefits, as labor does, and usually gets such benefits as incentive pay. From the standpoint of a man's future, a fringe benefit is preferable to a highly taxed salary. By this means, management participates in ownership, but by no process does ownership usually participate in management which has become strictly professional and trained. The need for skilled management therefore is urgent and calls for increasingly high returns. The stock option is management's method of obtaining an estate providing return for their work.

out, however, that it was a case of an unprecedented nature for which neither the President nor the Congress has had occasion heretofore to delegate or fix responsibility. For it was, outwardly at least, an operation carried out by Cubans as participants. Americans acted as advisers. The CIA helped to plan the project. The Joint Chiefs were asked their opinion beforehand and gave it. But, while the theory was all right and the plan might really have succeeded but for some hard luck at the last moment, the failure wouldn't have occurred if it had been a strictly United States military operation. It came so near success anyway that it is easy now to blame this or that circumstance. And, of course, hindsight is always better than foresight.

One important factor has not been fully explained. An American aircraft carrier was 10 miles away from the landing point. At a crucial moment American air support was needed. It had been promised. When it was called for by the Cubans, it didn't materialize. Was this because of faulty communication between the Cuban expedition and Washington? Was there a lapse of several hours while civilian advisers of the President, who argued against the idea, caused him to hesitate and ultimately to decline to authorize air support?

TOUGH ON GOP -- Republicans on the Senate side of the Capitol Building are working up to a boil over the way mementoes of some of their most famous party members are being treated Workmen are installing new elevators in the old building, and finding shafts in which to place them is no mean feat. But places were found for them.

One will cause a marble bust of President Abraham Lincoln to be dislodged, with no new position disignated for it. This particular Lincoln bust has looked down on passersby from a favored position in the Senate lobby since 1867.

This same shaft will cause the removal of a Republican Senator, Charles Sumner of Massachusetts. whose abolitionist views caused him to be caned on the Senate floor in 1856. The other shaft will remove another Republican figure from a preferred place in the Capitol, that of President Calvin Coolidge. It probably is only coincidence will be removed, that of Thomas Marshall, Woodrow Wilson's Vice President, Republicans insist privately that the whole thing is a plot by the controlling Democrats to downgrade the historical image of their party in the Capitol.

MYSTERY - Every Monday morning, President John F. Kennedy's secretary loads a crystal bowl in his office with fruit apples, oranges, grapes, pears and bananas. She does this presumably on instructions of her boss, although he has not been seen munching this or any other fruit. Yet, at the end of each week, the

There is a lot of speculation at the White House concerning the disappearance of the fruit. At least one person has raised the question of Lincoln's ghost, said by some to reside there. Others take the more prosaic view that Kennedy and some of his callers and his staff manage to do away with the fruit during the conferences. And, incidentally, the secretary

doing

It's a kind of situation that is new to the American government, especially since, on the one hand, it was strictly a Cuban affair and, on the other, it was so much the concern of the United States that it seems tragic the decision wasn't made either to go all-out with air support and everything else or stay out altogether. That's perhaps hindsight, too.

It would be unfortunate to start looking for scapegoats. Significantly, Senator Morse, Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee which heard General Lemnitzer's testimony, said afterward to reporters that the General had given helpful testimony, and added:

is but another way of emphasizing the real point of the controversy - namely, that the Cuban invasion was not a strictly military affair which our own military men planned and executed. It was a mixture of civilian hesitancy - due to a fear of public opinion in Latin America and forbearance by the military chiefs who were never given full

So, after all, maybe the less said about it the better, and maybe President Kennedy, who is studying now, through General Maxwell D. Taylor, retired, the best way hereafter to carry on such operations in the "cold war," will come up with an answer. Hot moist heat packs are helpful when one joint or the back is involved. A heat lamp is used to keep the packs warm. If this is not done, moist packs cool off within 15 minutes and must be replaced constantly.

The paraffin bath usually is reserved for arthritic fingers, hands, or wrists. Paraffin is melted in a pan and the hands are dipped into the solution. They are removed every few minutes to allow the paraffin to dry and to form a new layer on the skin. The coating acts as insulation and holds in heat for some time thereafter.

The only time heat may aggravate distress is when the joints are acutely inflamed. Here warmth increases congestion and swelling.

Kennedys Override Gov. Patterson.

Number One Supporter In The South

His father was killed by the underworld mob of Phoenix City, Ala. It was at his father's funeral that Meriwether and other Alabama politicians decided to groom John Patterson to run for attorney general and, later, governor.

Irony No. 3-When Attorney General Kennedy wanted to restore law and order in Alabama, he tried to get Governor Patterson on the telephone. The governor

In the past, telephone connections between "John" and "Bobby" have been frequent, friendly and easy. During the nominating campaign for John F. Kennedy, Governor Patterson was the first Southern leader to come out for him and one of the faithfuls who tried to line up Southern delegates. All during the Presidential campai 1 Patterson had no trouble telephoning Brother Bobby, and vice versa. This was true also during the Senate fight over Meriwether who was appointed as a political pay-off to Patterson

But when Bobby wanted to reach John regarding law and order in Alabama, John was out. Irony No. 4-Eugene "Bull" Connor, the Birmingham Police Commissioner whose police were a minus quantity when the "Freedom Riders" arrived in Birmingham, is the Democrati National Committeeman for Alabama, suptic Party in that state. In the early 1950's while serving a previous term as police commissioner, Connor va caught by one of his own detectives in a hotel room in an embarrassing situation with a lady. Connor was then convicted. Ironically, he had put an ordinance on the statute books making it illegal for a couple to occupy a hotel room unless married. He inspired the ordinance for the purpose of trapping a former mayor of Birmingham, but sot caught by his own law. After being convicted, Connor proceeded to test the validity of the law.

Connor was overwhelmingly reelected police commissioner of Birmingham two weeks ago.

Irony No. 5-Maxwell Field, just outside Montgomery, is the nation's Air University and show place of the Air Force. Yet there have been constant embarrassments to Negro visitors in that area. Last year two Ethiopian Air Force officers, Maj. Abera Marian and Lt. Johannes Marian, guests of the U.S. Air Force, together with two U. S. Negro officers Mai Denzal Capt. Philip Jeter, were arrested in downtown Montgomery while Montgomery police confiscated a hammer from Major Harvey's automobile and hauled all four to the station house, threatening to book them for "carrying a deadly weapon. Later, the city of Montgomery formally apologized, but this did not undo the damage to relations with a country where the United States has been working to win friends against a lot of Soviet inroads. Another incident occurred in the Montgomery Trailways bus station when Airman Henry O. S. May, a Negro on emergency leave from Eglin Field in Florida, stretched out on a bench to sleep. Police Officer Estes prodded him with a nightstick and ordered him to sit up The police officer later alleged that Mays cursed him. But the Negro's story, later supported by Air Force investigators was that the policeman had punched him. struck him with a nightstick, and pulled a gun on him which Mays knocked out of the officer's hand.

Air Force investigators found that the Negro airman had been dragged to jail and beaten severely, his right eye swollen shut, lips puffed, face bruised, with three deep cuts over his eyebrow. They also discovered blood on his uniform, his prison mattress, and the cell floor.

Col. C. C. Harris, base commander, met privately with Montgomery city fathers, and reported to Washington that the police chief had expressed his regret. Colonel Harris, instead of demanding security for his personnel, ordered Negro personnel to keep out of Montgomery in the future.

As a result of these incidents, there was some talk during the Eisenhower Administration of moving Air Force operations out of Alabama. Sen. Philip Hart, Michigan Democrat, who comes from a distressed area, was urged by friends to start a move to transfer Air Force installations from the prosperous ,segregated South to the depressed, integrated North. Hart wasnt' interested.

Irony No. 6-Ben Hardeman, assistant City Judge of Montgomery. a strong segregationist, has been recommended by Senators Hill and Sparkman of Alabama to be U. S. Attorney with the job of enforcing federal law. If appointed, he will have to enforce the law as ordered by Attorney General Kennedy who has now sent 400 U. S. marshals to Alabama.

Note-The Birmingham News led Alabama indignation in a series of vigorous editorials against Ku Klux Klan lawlessness and the hands-off attitude of Governor Patterson which encouraged that violence.

Branch, New Jersey, there is a huge iron fence which shields acres of blue grass and heavy oaks and stately copper beeches. A sign says: "Monmouth College" and, in the afternoon, young men and women stand laden with books, chatting. It was behind this fence that a humorless man once said: "Aw, tell it to the

He was Woodrow Wilson, a slender professor who was President of the United States. He affected pince-nez and a chilly reserve. He had been President from 1912 to 1916, and he was campaigning for a second term when, in the final week, he went to a house behind this big iron fence and waited for the will of

It was called Shadowlawn then. He moved in, with his wife and daughters, and the President was thankful that it was a warm sweet November. He could walk across the loamy acres without his greatcoat and muffler and he was a man who liked to walk alone.

The Republicans had pitted Charles Evans Hughes against him this time and the Republican Party was solid. There were no splits, as there had been when the pouter pigeon, Teddy Roosevelt, had broken away. Hughes resigned from the United States Supreme Court to make the race.

Judge Hughes wore a gray forked beard and he had as much dignity as Wilson. The issue was War or Peace. Across the face of Europe, the kaiser's armies were locked in a stalemate with the French and British. America wanted to keep out of it. Wilson said that he believed in "preparedness.

He was neutral on the side of the British and French. Millions of second generation Germans and Irish in the United States did not like England, and wanted the kaiser to be victorious The Democratic Party chiefs thought that Wilson could win easily on his domestic record and a promise or neutrality and preparedness.

On election day, Wilson remained at Shadowlawn. He was confident. The party wheelhorses sat in an office in Ashbury Park looking out at the blue spangled sea waiting to count the early votes. The first one to come in was from a little town in Massachusetts. It showed that Wilson was a little bit ahead of his 1912 total.

Some early tallies came in over Western Union from Colorado and Kansas. They showed big gains for Wilson. The late afternoon newspapers said: Wilson Leads. The President went indoors at Along Norwood Avenue in Long sundown and, before dinner, phoned Asbury Park. He wanted to know if there was any news. His secretary, Joseph Tumulty, told him that he was far ahead.

> Night came slowly to Shadowlawn and, in the early hours, the heavy returns from the east and middlewest swung to Hughes. It was Hughes in New Jersey and Ohio and Illinois; it was Hughes in this state and that one. It was Hughes everywhere.

> At 10, the reporters asked for a statement of capitulation from Wilson. They were in Asbury Park and Tumulty, said that the President had no statement. The Morning World reporter showed him an office bulletin. "Flash!" it said. "Hughes Elected President. Repeat: Hughes elected."

> Tumulty was loyal to his chief. "Sufficient gains will be made in the west to offset the losses," he said. "Wilson will win."

At 11 p. m. the President phoned again. He said that Admiral Grayson had told him the news. "Well Tumulty," he said, "it begins to look as if we have been badly licked." Tumulty said nobody had been licked yet. The President called him an optimist and said: "The only thing I am sorry for, and that cuts me to the quick, is that the people apparently misunderstood us.'

Wilson went to bed defeated. Hughes went to bed as Presidentelect. In the morning, the nation was still counting votes. The sun came up out of a pale haze and word came to headquarters that Chio, which had been in Hughes' pocket at bedtime, was now in Wilson's by 60,000 votes. Kansas gave its electoral votes to Wilson by a handful. The Dakotas went Democratic. Utah was now for

California, the last to announce its will, finally nodded graciously to Woodrov. Wilson. The New York Times ran off a late edition saying the election of Hughes was

At Shadowlawn, the President was in his bathroom, shaving with a straight razor. He scraped the foam downward across his cheek. His daughter Margaret knocked on the door. Wilson asked what she wanted. She told him that she had the final news of the election. "You have been elected," she 12.60 on the decline.

13.52 Local and commission interests bought on the decline.

Trading was active in both corn and oats.
Cash grain houses bought July oats and sold December. Exporter buying firmed July corn early in the day.
Rye futures had little feature. The Winnipeg market fell heavily, but local prices.

16.54 19.60 advanced. The Agriculture Department said soynipeg market fell heavily, but local prices advanced.

The Agriculture Department said soybean export inspections last week totaled 2,577,000 bushels, about 800,000 below a Zera age.

2 Escapees Back In Jail At Parsons

Youths Attempt To Get Out Of Oakland Lockup

Two of the four prisoners who escaped from the Tucker County jail in Parsons, W. Va. early Friday morning and were arrested in Garrett County were back where they started last night, although they tried unsuccessfully to saw their way out of the county jail in Oakland Satur-

On Monday Lawrence M. Harrah and Harold J. Wade, both 17, taken before Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley in Oakland, waived extradition and were returned to the jail in Parsons.

Still at large are 27-year-old Ralph Pacella of Pennsylvania, and Patsy Tanzy, 18, of Clarksburg, W. Va., who may be in the Washington, D. C. area. Harrah and Wade were nabbed in the Keysers Ridge area by Trooper Donald R. Wade. On Monday the trooper and Sheriff James Frantz took the two boys before the jude. Later they turned them over to Tucker County Sheriff James D. Phillips and Deputy William Judy, who returned the youths to Parsons.

Sheriff Phillips said he received word from Sheriff Frantz that the two boys tried to saw their way out of jail at Oakland after report- Needed: 500 Women edly finding a saw in the lockup. Broke Into Restaurant
